LOCAL ITEMS.

THE ALEXANDRIA MARKET .- Our Merchants in all departments of Trade, our Manufacturers and our Mechanics, are laying in large and handsome assortments of Goods of every description for the Spring TRADE, which will new shortly commence. The variety, quantity, and excellence of these goods, have not heretofore been surpassed. We now, therefore, invite our friends in the country, merchants, farmers, and all others. to look to the market in Alexandria, for their supplies. They will find that our invitation is not a selfish one-for the mere interest of our city-(though we acknowledge that, as is natural, we have its interests at heart, and will go for them, with all our mind and strength-urge them, defend them, and press them) -- but in the full and confident belief that in making their purchases here--at home--in a Virginia town -they will benefit themselves and be performing a patriotic duty, entirely in accordance with good policy. People, we know will buy where it is most to their advantage, to buy. Let the rule have fair play. Look at the merchandise, goods, implements, ware, for sale here; at the facilities of getting purchases speedily home-the saving in freight, and transportation, &c., &c .- and act accordingly. But, we again ask, that, this Spring, the market in Alexandria, for all descriptions of goods, be tried—be examined. We are confident, that such an examination, will bring about a lively trade.

MISCELLANEOUS READING. BONNETS. Of all the charms dear woman wears, Of all unmanly traps and snares, For real effect there's naught compares With a truly pretty bonnet; For when or wherever you chance to meet One that is perfectly modest and neat, You may depend 'tis a proof complete That the head has more in than on it. No matter whether she's pretty or not, How much or how little money she's got, Whether she lives in a mansion or cot, 'Tis a fact, depend upon it: The woman to make a man happy thro' life, To make a model mother and wife, Is one who, scorning this milliner strife, Wears a plain and tasteful bonnet. Now, a bonnet of genuine beauty and grace,

Shadowing faintly the wearer's face, "Is the thing for a song or a sonnet." But one of these gay and gaudy things, Made up of rainbows and butterfly wings, A mixture of flowers, ribbons and strings, Is dreadful, depend upon it. A vulgar mass of "fuss and feather," A little of everything thrown together, As if by a touch of windy weather, A wretched conglomeration-

Worn on the head in its proper place,

Leaving the head to "go it bare," A striking example of "Nothing to wear," Is this bonnet abomination. It makes a woman look brazen and bold, Assists her in catching nothing but cold, It is bad on the young, absurd on the old, And deforms what it ought to deck; For, look at her face, no bonnet is there, See, at the side it hangs by a hair-

A sort of a cup to catch the hair,

That the creature has broken her neck ! No matter where you may chance to be, No matter how many women you see, A promiscuous crowd or a certain she, You may fully depend upon it, That a gem of the very rarest kind, A thing most difficult to find, A pet for which we long have pined,

Is a perfect "love of a bonnet."

CLAMS .- Among the "champions," little and great, springing up daily, the last one we have heard of is an oyster opener in New York, who after eating an ordinary dinner, on a wager of five dollars only, accomplished the wonderful feat of eating fourteen large sized bull nosed clams in six minutes and ten seconds-ten minutes being allowed by the terms of the wager. The clams weighed, after being opened, five pounds and a half clean meat. The man was alive the next day, and expressed himself as feeling "all right.
